FOREIGN LAW DECISION.

A case of some importance to Masters and - istresses was decided yesterday, after some argument, before the court t Requests, Vine street:- A grocer summoned Mr Styles, a chemist, in Regent street, for the payment of eight shillings, tor goods had by a women representing berselt as being in Mr Style's servicewhich he retused to pay, on the ground time past, and consequently the goods were not had for him. The Court, however, with the exception of one member, decided in favor of the grocer, on the principle, that a person sending a servant to a shop for goods, and paying one bill, is bound, on the servants leaving him, to give notice to all his tradesmen that the woman had left his service some

not to let her have more goods on his account. If he does not do this, he is liable for any accounts she may run up in his name, at shops she had been accustomed to fetch goods from for his use, while she was in his service. London paper.

In the previous document Reuben Weidler and his siblings are suing Dr. Abraham Carpenter, executor of Abraham Carpenter, their grandfather, for his failure to pay them the bequests they were to receive according to their grandfather's will. As can be seen from the above cases, Dr. Carpenter satisfied the claims of some of the other plaintiffs, but apparently not those of the Weidler or the Johns children.
